Living in motion

Let Adria inspire your next adventure.

“We recently took the new Astella Glam Edition on holiday for the first time, after buying it at the caravan show. It looks so stylish and comfortable, all of our friends are amazed by it.”

“Our Action was our very first caravan and we use it all the time for getaway breaks. It’s really easy to use and so clever in the way it is designed. For a smallish caravan you can pack so much into it and towing it is a joy.”

“Caravans give us so much freedom for our holidays. We fell in love with the New Altea, especially the new interior.”

Glamorous camping is a growing new trend in many parts of the world and taking a long holiday in a really luxurious caravan is a real treat.

But where to go? Well, there are whole websites devoted to “glamping” in addition to the more established camping websites and touring guides.

Our vote would be to pick a beautiful lake in Austria. There are many to choose from and most are dotted with typically well laid out and managed camping grounds. The Austrian’s know how to do this and the camps have the expected first class facilities but some go further with wellness spas and all kinds of activities on site, including clubs to occupy the children or grand-children if you are travelling with family.

Go anytime from Spring to the Autumn and try the area around Zell am See. 15,000 square miles of lake bathing and outstanding natural beauty. The surrounding countryside is dotted with great hiking and biking. Take off in the car and try some of the spectacular mountain passes with views to the heavens. The local towns are worthy of a morning pottering around the market or taking in some fine Austrian cuisine too.

Your luxurious lakeside home.

“Austria is a lovely place to stay, with the water’s edge a few yards from the van. Our Astella Glam is like owning our own luxury hotel.”

Astella

The Astella Glam Edition is the ultimate in modern luxury and style. A caravan which really lives upto it's name.

Winner of the 2012 European Innovation Award, this caravan sets the standard for all the caravans.

Think of Finland and what comes to mind? It's likely to be a sense of a vast and frankly cold, wilderness.

Is this really a suitable place for a touring holiday? Well it's not for everyone but it is for the adventurers out there, especially those who like to really enjoy nature and get active. In late spring you will find plenty of snow but daylight enough to enjoy it. The summer can be a real treat with seemingly ever-lasting daylight and this is quickly followed by the gorgeous colours of the autumn season.

Finland is nature, many times over. A country of forests and lakes. Sparsely populated, its' people have character and a spirit of independence. Welcoming too. Food in Finland can be a bit off-beat but nonetheless enjoyable. Try elk, reindeer and even bear. Salmon is more recognizable of course. And there's many a good festival to stop off at too.

Finland is an active place. It suits those with “get up and go”. There is plenty to see and do. Find perfect locations by one or more of the thousands of lakes, visit cool and modern Helsinki or just enjoy the wilderness. If you have the time you can even cross the Arctic Circle. The weather reflects the northerly location of Finland so make sure you have a warm and comfortable caravan with you. The Alpina would be an ideal choice. Spacious, comfortable and suitable for all season use.

You need to do some planning for your trip but any trip of Finland should call in on the capital city and then head for the wilderness.

A Perfect Finnish.

If you can, plan a visit to Savonlinna, Finland’s prettiest town set on two islands between Haapavesi and Pihlajaevsi lakes. This is a spectacular setting for a castle and an opera festival. It has both.

Consider heading north to the Koli National Park and beyond to the Oulanka National Park if your holiday time permits. Finland. It’s a bit out of the ordinary but you won’t regret your choice.

Alpina

Alpina sets the standards comfortable year-round caravanning. Built for all-seasons use, this innovative and intelligently designed caravan is known for its warm, comfortable and spacious accomodation.

With a choice of Alde heating solutions and a range of lenghts and layouts, Alpina is the perfect caravan for your next adventure.

Spain may well be Europe's most diverse and exotic destination. From the staggeringly beautiful Pyrenees to the north, the famed beaches around its long coastline, the wine country of La Rioja, to the coolest of cities in Barcelona, Valencia and Madrid. Spain has it all.

A benign climate and an adventurous spirit. Spain is also a haven for holidaymakers who bring their own home with them. Whilst the opportunities are endless, we would urge you to consider the northern coast, near San Sebastian, famed Basque Country.

San Sebastian is the culinary capital of Spain and is home to the pintxos, or Basque tapas, which is a must-try experience. The beach, Playa de la Concha, is perfect for people-watching. However, we would create a holiday around Santander where campsites and beaches are excellent.

From here you can experience lazy beach days and some exotic day-trips which should include Bilbao, home to the Guggenheim Museum. If you are holidaying in July then experience the annual Sanfermines festival, the running of the bulls, in Pamplona. But from a safe distance.

Spain. Diverse, cool and exotic.

Glorious beaches and quaint French towns and villages. That's what comes to mind when you think of Brittany. This is an idyllic part of the world to visit and is especially suitable for great caravanning adventures.

There are hundreds of really good camping grounds stretched out along the meandering coastline, many backing right onto the sand dunes and others in more rural, leafy, enclaves. Good facilities in the tradition of the French and nice places to set up home for a week or two. The season stretches from June to September if you expect to swim and longer if you don't!

There are great beaches everywhere from the more upmarket Dinard, to the north and all along the coastline you will find great places for relaxing or more active sports.

Brittany is a destination with plenty to explore and discover. And you don't have to tour the whole region, just chose a basecamp and you will find plenty within easy reach by car. Go inland and sample the delights of the walled towns – the citadels – and of course ensure you sample the delightful French cuisine. Places like Dinan, Vitre and the port of St Malo would be on our “must do” list.

The Other Britain.

“We visited Brittany in our Action. It’s a great caraan to tour and use. Cute - too, it seems to make people smile when they see it.”

Istria has long been a favourite destination for caravan holidays.

The reasons are obvious: the fabulous climate, crystal-clear waters of the Adriatic, the long coastline peppered with shaded tree-lined coves for swimming and for its' culinary delights. The occasional resort towns are pretty, like Rovinj and Porec, with old world charm, cobbled streets and restaurants galore.

Istria has an eventful history but is now part of Croatia, and a charming part it is too. Take your caravan here and you'll find plenty of options. The New Altea would make a fine travelling companion for your family. In its newest form, the Altea has a redesigned exterior and of most importance the new interior is a light and airy place to pass the time.

With all the gloomy news nowa-days, it's easy to forget just how beautiful Greece is. The sheer variety of places to visit, from the mainland and the obvious attractions of Athens to the hundreds of perfect little islands basking in the hot Mediterranean sunshine.

Okay, so islands means ferries and perhaps a little more thought about where to visit and how to get there. Patience is, however, a virtue and no matter which island or islands you plan to visit, the rewards are as clear as the inviting Mediterranean water.

We would suggest you take a look at Corfu but most islands have camping sites. Corfu is served well by ferries, is pretty easy to get around and there is some great camping to be had.
